

"Thirteen years ago a boy found it one morning in a little hut down in the bog."

Three inches of the blade was defiled with blood, which marked the distance it had penetrated the body of an old man who lay by the side of the dead. The man was Olaf Pederwinski, an indigent peddler. The murderer was never found. The knife, however, was brought to the station, and was sold the next spring at auction.

"Three days after the sale the thing was again in our hands, as was its owner Herman Sawyer. Sawyer was a cobbler by trade down on West Berger street. He had always borne a good reputation, and his stabling that Cotfield woman, without apparent provocation, was never satisfactorily explained. Well, the woman got well after a while, and Sawyer was let off with a light fine. The knife stayed with us a year, and the coming spring was again sold. The clerk's book showed the sale. The property was made to order by Cyrus Bentley, a negro, and in less than a week Cyrus Bentley was behind the bars. He was charged with cutting a companion in a saloon brawl. I saw him throw the knife away after the assault, and it was found floating in the water afterward by some laborers in a vacant lot. We lost track of the thing for a number of years, but one night two men were brought into the station here covered with blood. The police officer, and the district attorney's office had interfered just in time to prevent a vital thrust. In searching the men before imprisonment I found on one of them that knife. It's been here ever since. We won't send it now for any price, and I wouldn't carry a one night for all the wealth of Christendom."

Then the brass-battened psychologist walked away, and we stood looking at the knife, marveling that we had not noticed before the great brown stains which marked the brightness of its blade.

TOOK A DIP.

And the Elephant Liked It So Well He Went Back.

(New York Recorder) On last Tuesday night a very pretty yacht belonging to the Schelling brothers, which was anchored at short distance from the beach at Long Beach, dragged its anchor until it began bumping up against the iron pier. The Schellings were afraid their craft would be seriously damaged and wanted to get it up as soon as possible. But they found it impossible, they supposed, as they could not command sufficient horse power. Mr. Boetock, the proprietor of the Wombwell circus, who had been watching the elephant hitch the elephant to the anchor, took it up on the beach, providing connection could be made between Jolly and the boat.

Jolly is more than fourteen years old now, and has been taught to perform all kinds of tricks. He was brought to America by his owner, Hausers were attached to his breast collar, and when his trainer, Matt Johnson said "Gee up" Jolly started and pulled the pleasure craft up to the bathing pavilion on the beach. The elephant's attachment with the craft it had been found necessary to get him in the ocean up to his stomach and he had got a taste of the sea bathing. He displayed reluctance about swimming out, but for the sake of the money, his trainers would have lain down in the water.

About 5 o'clock yesterday morning the life-saver of the Wainwright & Smith's bathing pavilion, Dick Albert, came rushing into the hotel and up to the room of Capt. Maitland, and breathlessly told him that Joll was a quarter of a mile out at sea and tempestuous with the earth.

The elephant had some time during the early hours of the morning recalled his dream of the day before and determined upon one on his own hook. Pulling up stakes he walked leisurely over to John Kelly's candy stand, where he made a hearty purchase of ingredients for his corn, caramels and other stock in trade at the tune of about $40. He then emptied the greater part of the contents of a big cooler of lemonade.

Believing that no harm would result from a baby's stomach and scorning such puerile ailments as cramps, Jolly proceeded into the beach.

All Rockaway Beach gathered at the foot of Seaside avenue to help get the elephant out of the water. A sense of a sensation that was being experienced by the elephant was felt by the people.

Matt Johnson and Lion Tamer Lorenz got two catamaran life-saving crafts and rowed out to the rollicking beast. John jolled his keepers in great style. He ignored their bribes of tidbits, for he had already breakfasted. He wouldn't let them get seaward of him. The rafts were clumsy

July was at home in the water. He has every advantage.

But when they throw a lass o' over his head and he is prodded to shore. Then he either had a chill or stimulated one. And he swallowed five quarts of whisky without minding it.

But the whisky was not the cause of the hankies. The hankies were applied to his stomach, and then July lay down to rest.

CLEAN STREETS IN GERMANY

Dresden is "Pastidiously Clean"—Berlin Perfectly Organized System.

(New York Sun) Clean streets and alleys and immaculate back yards, were certainly not conspicuously characteristic of German cities twenty years ago; but the recent improvements in water supply and drainage, as well as in general sanitary administration, might naturally be expected to have the accompanying result of more perfect cleanliness. Moreover, the streets have become made feasible by the smooth, new paving streets of German cities are now kept in a state of enviable cleanliness. Berlin's thoroughfares are scrubbed and swept continually under a system that is perfectly organized and that costs less than $500,000 a year. It is a flexible system, which provides for a prompt increase of workmen in bad weather and is never helpless in the presence of a sudden snowfall. The central streets of a leading German city are swept every day, and the sidewalks at night or very early in the morning. In addition to which "rain-columns" of street-cleaners are on constant duty to remove horse manure and other accumulations. Berlin, Dresden, Hamburg, Leipzig, and other cities have a full municipal service, while in Leipzig, Cologne, Stuttgart and other places the cleaning is partly municipal and partly private.

So far as I am aware Dresden is the first of the German cities to have a full municipal service.

It extends the uniformly daily cleaning to a large area. Berlin's district of daily cleaning is comparatively small.

It is the only one which cleans from three to five times a week, is large, and all the important outlying streets are well cleaned twice a week. If I should name the small cities of Hamburg, Bremen, and Düsseldorf, and other cities obtain remarkable results.

ably thorough and satisfactory results, I am afraid I should not be believed by American municipal authorities. Everywhere in Germany many one notes the perfect organisation of these services, and their rapid improvement, so as the standards of civilized life become more rigorous. The trend in Germany is toward a unified direct municipal service of street-cleaning, sprinkling and garbage removal.

and, while much diversity of opinion is present, there is no failure in any large German town of that exercise of full municipal authority and responsibility which prescribe what shall be done, and sees that the prescription is carried out.

Eloquent Sermon by Rev. Mr. Vaile.

"Christianity and Criticism" the Text Discussed.

Rev. Mr. Thomson on "Christ's Civil Service."

An Informal Business Meeting at Simpson Tabernacle—The Bishop Asked to Continue Dr. McLean as the Pastor.

Rev. C. S. Vaile, pastor of Plymouth Church, preached yesterday morning at the First Congregational Church in exchange with Dr. Hutchinson. An appreciative audience listened to Mr. Vaile's eloquent sermon on "Christianity and Criticism," taken from the text found in John xii, 47, "I came not to judge the world but to save the world." In his remarks Mr. Vaile said: "It is not remarkable how a single sentence may open the life purpose of a man? I came not to judge, but to save. Let us examine the force of this saying. Christianity, judging, condemning—however much they must be used incidentally, do not embody the great aim of Christ's life mission. I find that Christianity is not criticism, but is, in fact, opposed to it. The world is given far too much to criticizing, while church and Christians need to be brought back to their own salvation and helpful influence to the world. I find that Jesus Christ they are to save the world. Criticism is a natural product of freedom among men. Those who live under tyrants do not voice protests, but calmly submit to their fate. History is replete with illustrations of this. In literature, art, in science, in customs and manners there are creative eras when men seem to commune with God and some divine product is the result. Then, as if exhausted by their effort, or satiated by God's goodness they begin to classify and rearrange their acquired wealth and lo, the whole world is given itself to criticism. The ideal is lost, the worship is turned into idolatry, the ideal is becoming a critical age. The church and destruction comes upon us because men turn their creative forces into the stagnant pools of criticism.

"Christ came to save the world. These words refer to the spirit and purpose of His mission. He says to the controversial world, 'Your way is not my way, nor do I come to tear down, but to fulfill, to bear a message of truth and life.' There was enough to criticize and condemn in the world into which Christ came. Did He come with wrath, violence and indignation? No, He knew that it was Satan who was the oppressor of men. How wholly positive, affirmative and uplifting was the life of Jesus! Let us believe that the world can be saved. Not individuals out of the wreck only, as some men preach, but, if you so term it, the wreck itself. 'I cannot despair of this world's salvation as long as I put my trust in the God of nature, and in the saving power of Christ.' The Jewish rabbis said: 'The Messiah will come if men truly believe for one day.' The kingdom of Christ will come when the disciples are as His Lord."

SIMPSON TABERNACLE.
At Simpson Methodist Episcopal Tabernacle, in place of the usual morning service, an informal business meeting was held for the purpose of reading before the entire congregation resolutions expressing the high appreciation and esteem in which the pastor, Dr. C. C. McLean, and his accomplished wife are held, and also expressive of the earnest desire of the church that the presiding bishop would return them to this pastorate for the ensuing year, as it is felt that the continued existence and ultimate success of the church are dependent upon their labors. After the reading of the resolutions, remarks endorsing them were made by a number of the prominent members, who voiced the evident sentiment of the entire congregation. These remarks reviewed the several months during which Dr. McLean has been with them. Since January 1, 105 members have been added, over 700 pastoral calls made, the debt of the church largely diminished, and the church itself saved from failure to become a memorial to God. Seven months ago its continued existence was a question; now its ultimate success is assured. The resolutions were adopted unanimously by a rising vote in the midst of applause.

A strong, deep sentiment of unity is the prevailing atmosphere of this church. It is essentially the home of the stranger, Rich and poor, the resident and the stranger are alike welcome, and are made to feel that they are wanted. All stand upon an equal plane of good-fellowship.

On the 2d of August the Choral Union will give a concert under the direction of Prof. Reichenbach, which will be a musical treat. The program is varied, delightful and unusual. Some of the best local talent has been secured and lovers of music will have a rare pleasure.

EAST SIDE BAPTIST CHURCH.
The East Los Angeles Baptist Church has been undergoing repairs during the past week and among other things the choir-box has been elevated on a level with the pulpit. Mrs. Nellie Morfitt has charge of a large choir which rendered some fine music. Rev. George E. Dye delivered a deeply-spiritual discourse Sunday morning on "The Blessed Life." He said in brief:

"After Christ's baptism in the River Jordan He returned into Galilee in the power of the spirit or the power of the blessed life and His fame spread. Up to this time Christ had lived in comparative seclusion. His active ministry may be said not to have begun until His baptism and the entrance through flaming portals into the blessed life. He was now simply irresistible. There is a like experience traced in the lives of the apostles. After the day of Pentecost their lives were transformed and even cowardly Peter was brave and devoted. They rose in the magnitude of extraordinary power. Did these spiritual dynamics stop with the apostles?"

Was this blessed experience special to them? Peter said: "I want to be baptized every one of you... and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." He declared it was to be the common experience of all Christians who sought it. In every age there have been those to whom the disclosures of the blessed life have been made. It is not a new revelation, devotion and not duplicity. It is the range of a new experience which is indescribable. It is not a new revelation, but a new meditation; not an attainment, but an attitude. Judson, Spurgeon, Wesley, Moody, and others have experienced it. It is the anointing with the oil of gladness. It is conditioned on prayer; on being the supreme desire of the heart; on the desire to serve God and God alone. In effect it clears the spiritual vision, gives reality to Christian experience, gives courage of convictions and makes the church move forward in victory in summer as well as winter. It is a formidable force which comes from the power of God.

Mr. Dye sought earnestly to have all enter into the portals of the blessed life and then be more useful to God and humanity.

He announced a chorus concert Friday night for the benefit of the church.

PACIFIC GOSPEL UNION.
The First Baptist choir, led by Prof. Moore, furnished an excellent song service at the Pacific Gospel Union tent. Evangelist C. S. Mason gave a stirring address on "The Book of Books." He said: "God spoke saying, 'The Lord said in the word of God came.' 'Thus saith the Lord,' occurs two thousand times in the Bible, which contains 31,173 verses, 1189 chapters, 66 books, and is believed to be the word of God from Genesis to Revelation, written with the pen of inspiration and sealed by the blood of the Son of God, and these were written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and believing ye might have life through His name.

The breakfast to the unemployed was largely attended, and the evening meetings every night in the tent on Second street, which is now the headquarters for the Gospel Union.

Y.W.C.A.
The gospel meeting of the Y.W.C.A. at No. 107 North Spring street was well attended. Miss Moore, who is doing much for the read selections from the Bible, and prayer was offered by Miss Brownell. Miss Anna Douglas presided at the piano. Miss Lillie T. Houser sang, "Come Into the Fold," accompanied herself upon the autoharp. Miss Moore then introduced Miss J. G. Evans, who has been, for the past twenty years, a missionary in North China. Miss Evans is a sister of Mrs. D. D. Chapin, who is so closely identified with mission work. Miss Evans is a fine, clear speaker, and her description of the work in North China was listened to with interest. She greatly desired to say something of it that would touch every heart. "The work is," she said, "not yours, nor ours, but the work of God. It is a message that afternoon about the needs of our sister in North China. It is not all for money; it is for our sympathy and prayers, for if sunk in degradation and without joy or hope, they are our sisters, and we have a duty to them to perform. We should let the light of Christ's love shine upon them."

Miss Evans then spoke of how she found them twenty years ago, and, in spite of earnest work of how many still remain in the darkness, and, worst of all, are content with it, because they do not know that they possess an immortal soul. They think themselves only as servants of their husbands and their mothers-in-law. In 1872 there was only a handful of the native women that had come into the light, and they were not strong workers as yet. Only after faithful effort with them could they be trusted to teach their own people. Miss Evans gave a minute account of the work done by the missionaries from their tours, upon which they carried their own bedding and food, to the founding of training schools, women's Christian associations, missionary societies and temperance societies. She said that she was proud of the world that the work is doubly slow, it being necessary to teach them geography and such things before they are able to comprehend the import of the message of salvation.

All of the very interesting talk impressed Miss Evans's hearers that there was a reward for the service, higher than any that could be gained by worldly following after wealth and the fleeting pleasures of this world.

Miss Moore followed, saying that "the field did not seem so far away after this talk."

The meeting was closed with prayer by Miss Chapin, Mrs. Mathews and Miss Moore and with singing by the choir.

UNITED CHURCH.
At the Church of the Unity the pastor, Rev. J. S. Thomson, preached a sermon yesterday morning upon "Christ's Civil Service."

Such sentences as "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he reap." "There is no respect of persons with God." "The dead were judged out of the things written in the books, according to their works." "By their fruits ye shall know them," showed very plainly that Christ's gospel is opposed to the doctrine of fatalism, and to the doctrine that it is just for one man to have to suffer for the sins of another. The gospel teaches that we are responsible beings, and that we cannot escape the results of our sins. But in Christ's name the false, cowardly, and cruel doctrine, that we can escape suffering for sin, and that a villain may inherit glory at the expense of another's life, has been preached for centuries, and the result is that we are corrupt in politics, in business, and in every department of life. This old barbarous doctrine which we have inherited from ancient paganism has become a second nature to us; and Christ's doctrine, that every man must suffer for his own sins, has been very much disregarded, and no other doctrine will save us from our social and political corruption. The late strike is an illustration of this anti-Christian teaching. The strikers thought it was right to make millions of people suffer for the sins of Pullman; and, in that matter, they acted consistently with the doctrine of the atonement, as it has been perverted in the churches for ages. Officers and teachers in our public schools all over the country are retained or dismissed according to the doctrine of fatalism. The police are often dismissed for doing their duty, and kept because they slight their duty. If we followed Christ's plain teachings we would have cleaner lives.

FRESH LITERATURE.

THE QUEEN OF EQUADOR. By R. M. Manley, author of "Boys of the Desert," "The H. W. Hageman Publishing Company, New York."

This story deals largely with occult powers and illustrates the susceptibility of some people to their influence. The characters are well drawn, and those interested in hypnotism and the study of mental forces will find in it much to interest them.

Magazines for July and August.

The Literary Digest is abreast of the times in its discussion of the topics of the day, letters and art, and its grand glimpses into the world of science. The great strike in all its phases is intelligently treated, with the effects which are sure to follow. The religious world is not forgotten, and the echoes from foreign lands which reach the reader are full of interest. The publication is multi-talented in part.

The New Science Review makes its initial appearance, and promises much in its chosen field. It is published simultaneously in New York, London and Philadelphia. "The Mystery of the Ice Age," by Maj.-Gen. A. W. Drayson is discussed in the opening paper. Julian Hawthorne treats of "Scientific Creation." Charles Morris of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, gives the reader an interesting paper on "The Problem of the Pole." The remaining articles are likewise full of interest.

Already many of the August monthlies have put in an appearance. McClure's Magazine offers an excellent bill of fare, among which we notice "Some Personal Recollections of Gen. Sherman," by S. H. M. Byers, with excellent portraits. "In the Depths of a Coal Mine," by Stephen Crane, the reader is afforded a vivid glimpse of life as it is in that underground, sunless and starless world. The miner's life is shown to be one of hardship and danger and should be well paid. It is well for the more fortunate to get a glimpse sometimes of how their less fortunate brothers live.

Demorest for August has among its attractive features "Funny Stories Told by Famous People," illustrated with portraits. Chaucer, M. Depeu, Marshall P. Wilder, Buffalo Bill, Maj. J. B. Pond, Napoleon Bonaparte and Beatrix Tarraden are the story tellers. "In and About a Lumber Camp," by Sara R. McIsaac, takes the reader into the heart of the country by its pictures and stirring streams, and is altogether a delightful glimpse of life in wooded wilds. It is a number to please.

The Quarterly Illustrator is a work that must be a favorite with every art lover, for it is in its illustrations that it helps in its well-written suggestiveness. Its home is New York, the great American art center. The current number contains 322 illustrations by over one hundred and fifty well-known artists, and among its literary contributions are the names of many prominently known in the world of letters.

Harper's Monthly among other delights takes its readers "Up the Norway Coast," into the heart of the land of the midnight sun. The sketch is from the pen of George Card Pease, and is beautifully illustrated. It is a pleasant way to look at the world—this looking at it by proxy through such intelligent eyes as those of the writer of this sketch, supplemented by his pictures. Then this number has its usual supply of stories and verse, which please the reader. Harper's Bazaar and Weekly for the current week also leave nothing to be desired. The weekly in commenting on the great strike is pronounced on the side of law and order, and the Bazaar gives us the latest from the world of fashion. St. Nicholas for August is the vacation number, and every boy and girl will be satisfied with what it has to offer. We will give just a hint of the good things it contains, among which are, "How Meta Saved Mill," Elizabeth Washington Flacker; "Jack Ballister's Fortune," chapters xiv, xv, xvi, by Howard Pyle, and "The Story of the Lake," by Charles F. Lummis, which is one of those delightful Toot-Wah folk stories, the author knows so well how to tell to the full satisfaction of his readers.

The Ladies' Home Journal opens with a story from the pen of Max O'Reil, "My First Snake," a story of his experience in New South Wales. Edward W. Bok gives a sketch of "Four Famous Young Americans," who have achieved fame in or before their thirtieth year. These are Richard Harding Davis, Rudyard Kipling, John Kendrick Bangs, and Jerome K. Jerome. A little portrait of each accompanies the article. Cox introduces the reader to "The Brownies at Newport," while lady readers will find between the covers of the magazine much of special interest to them upon a variety of topics.

BASEBALL.

Two Good Games at Athletic Park Yesterday Afternoon.

The two games of baseball at Athletic Park yesterday were interesting. The first game was between the Tufts-Lyons and Grays, the former winning by a score of 11 to 6. The second game was between the Keatings and Boyle Heights and was a walk-over for the Keatings, who won by a score of 23 to 8. Burge made the longest hit on the diamond—a clean home run. The Keatings had their batting eye with them yesterday, Moore inspired the two games, and gave satisfaction to the clubs as well as the audience. The following is the score of the first game by innings:

Tufts-Lyon	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Grays ...	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	1	1	1-6

Jack Dempsey and Billy McCarthy have been matched to fight to a finish in the arena of the Olympic Club at New Orleans. On February 18, 1894, the two fought at the California Club in this city, and the Nonpareil cut his man down in twenty-eight rounds. Since then the American has traveled the pace that kills, and is reported as being a wreck. McCarthy was always a game fellow, and it may be that he will be able to stay with Dempsey long enough to wear him out.

Milk Pans,

and pails, and cans, and bottles (even baby's)—or anything that you want particularly clean, ought to be washed with Pearline.

You'll save work in doing it, and it's a great deal more thoroughly done. Dairies and dealers use Pearline extensively. Just try it once, on your milk-ware or butter-ware—and then say if it isn't the most satisfactory way of cleaning. Pearline is the most economical thing you can use, too. You get so much more out of it.

Send it Back. Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "this same as" Pearline. IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled. If you get it, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. JAMES PYLE, New York.

A Dumb Watch

Is right twice a day, and it never does anything. It is better to do five things and have two of them wrong than not do anything. We made a mistake in buying too many high priced French Wash Crepons and have cut the price in half. One line was 50c, now it's 25c; another line was 35c, now it's 16c. Are you interested in Satines? Then look, compare, we know where the buying will be; there can be no other such a gathering of beautiful designs at 16c, 20c, 25c, 30c; Black Brocade Satines, fast black (not the rusty shades) that sell at sight at 35c; Moire Satines, same style, weave, finish and design as a moire silk, only they're all cotton, at 50c. What dainty dying in our dummies at 12c for 32-inch, white grounds and pretty figures. Irish Lawns, Penanga and cambries, the fine count thread at 18c for 36-inch such pretty outing flannels, but the price is only 10c, 12c and 16c, and what cloth can be used for so many things in the family. "The line of beauty" is the idol that all correct makers worship, particularly the manufacturers of the Worcester Corsets, that's the kind we keep, don't keep any other; don't want to; we think the best is none too good; they come in three lengths of waists, large, medium and small busts and hips, and the price is $1 up to $8.50. Health waists for ladies, misses and children. This is the greatest lace season on record; you can dress up in a black lace dress, or use it for a business suit. Black lace flouncing in new designs at $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.50 and up to $7.50 per yard; Black Lace all over net 40c to $3.50, new patterns; butter color laces for trimming, 15c per yard up; black lace edges 25c per yard and up; laces of every sort that anybody cares for, and in such styles and prices that nobody need be disappointed. Ladies' Shirt Waists, the large, full sleeve style, 100 designs at 50c and up; why your dress is half made when you get one, and a child can make a skirt, and we are making half prices on skirt lengths. It's high time for sunshades now, and we put a quick turn-over price on reliable goods at $1.25, $1.50, $2 and up. Sort of closing up a good season on straw hats in the Millinery Department; $1 ones at 50c and 50c ones now at 25c. Making an extra special on Ladies' Vests at 3 for 25c; single garments and union suits at modest prices.

IN CONTEMPT.

A Defaulting Witness Brought Back from San Francisco.

Deputy Sheriff Kearney returned from the North yesterday, bringing back from San Francisco W. Flint, a defaulting witness in the Charles Emery burglary case.

Emery was arrested for burglary on April 24, and Flint was subpoenaed to appear as a witness in the trial. Instead of waiting for the slow machinery of the law to get around to the Emery case, Flint, who was out of work at the time, and did not realize the offense he was committing, left the city, not materializing when wanted.

The Sheriff at San Francisco was promptly notified when it was found that Flint had gone thither in search of employment, and he soon located his man. Seeing that Flint was a drunkard, well-meaning young fellow, with no intention of preventing the conviction of Emery, he was not at first arrested.

As a guarantee of good faith he put in an appearance at the Sheriff's office every day, and even attempted to work his way down the coast by steamer to this city, as he had not enough money to pay his fare with.

Sheriff Cline was asked to treat the prisoner with leniency, as he had lost his position through the affair, besides being now held to answer for the offense of contempt of court.

SURE-SHOT MACHINES

An Attempt to Re-introduce the Pernicious Devices.

They Cultivate the Gambling Instinct and Corrupt the Young—Another Growing Evil Which Should Be Suppressed.

Visitors from the East have often remarked the open manner in which gambling of one sort and another has been carried on in this city, drawing comparisons with Eastern cities which were in no wise favorable to Los Angeles. And this, too, notwithstanding the fact that the city has received so large a quota of its population from the Eastern States as to give to it far more of an Eastern than a California air. The gambling tendency so noticeable in all California cities seems to have descended to them as a legacy from the early days when the winning or losing of a fortune over the gambling table was an almost every-day occurrence in the miners' cabin, in the saloons or faro games that flourished in every mining town, or in the still more pestilential dens of the larger cities like Sacramento or San Francisco.

The civic authorities have been waging war for some time on the various gambling dens and gambling devices which once thrived so luxuriantly in this city, and on whole their efforts have been fairly successful. But things crop out occasionally which serve to remind the people that the evil is deep seated and can hardly be eradicated by any legislation against it. The item published recently in The Times to the effect that L. H. Buchanan had made application to the Police Commissioners for permission to conduct one of the erstwhile notorious nickel-in-the-slot machines, recalls the agitation carried on some months ago against that faithful ally of the gambling fraternity, and its pernicious influence upon the mind of the young.

At that time the evil had become so prevalent that the cigar store or saloon which was not provided with a number of the slot machines was run by a very enterprising purveyor of tobacco and liquors, indeed, and received but little of the patronage of the young men of sportive tendencies. It was, on the other hand, no uncommon sight to see special tables provided for the accommodation of the machines in the first-class saloons or cigar stands, and a number of boys gathered about them, learning some of the delights and fascinations of gaming.

It only takes a nickel, or a few of them at least, to try your luck, and the occasional harvest which may be made is very short but whets the appetite for more nickels with which to "buck" the machine. It is needless to say that the balance of profit is invariably on the side of the slot machine and its thrifty proprietor, while the gain which accrues to the adventurous young gambler is the pleasant delusion that he is a genuine sport after the most approved mode.

Notwithstanding the fact that the average of profit for the machine when operated without fraud is 33 1/3 per cent., this legitimate spoil did not long satisfy the avarice of the owner, who then he thought himself of the expedient of plugging up the holes through which the occasional five-cent piece escaped into the pocket of the player, and making it a swindling concern pure and simple. So bad did the evil become that the once ubiquitous nickel in time was almost as scarce, for ordinary use of trade and commerce, as silver dollars in the tin cup of the blind musician on the street corner.

As a result of the agitation the authorities were gradually brought to realize the pernicious influence of the slot machine as a breeder of vice among the young, and a school for the education of the gambler, and an ordinance was passed prohibiting its use in this city.

It is hard to see upon what ground any one can ask for the reintroduction of the slot machine even when honestly conducted, into the cigar stores in this city, or why the objections to the machines so manifest three months ago, should not obtain with equal force now.

It would seem more reasonable, on the contrary, that the authorities, instead of taking a step backward, should direct their attention to other evils which prevail in the conduct of the saloons and cigar stands of this city. The shaking of dice for cigars or the drinks in just as much gambling as the slot machine on the faro bank, and it is carried on so openly as to elicit unfavorable remarks from the citizens in the city. When a practice becomes so prevalent that it is no uncommon sight to see sums as high as $20 staked on a single throw of the dice in a first-class saloon it is time something was done to check the evil.

Perhaps instead of the Police Commissioners granting a license to the slot machine owner aforesaid, it might be well for the City Council to frame some ordinance which would at once put a stop to anything other than the legitimate payment at the cigar counter or saloon bar of the price of the cigars, tobacco or liquor received.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Matters that Will Come Up at the Session Today.

The matter of an ordinance regulating the boring and operation of oil wells is expected to come up again before the City Council today. An adjourned meeting of that body was held last Wednesday afternoon, at which time a number of property-owners were heard on the matter and a proposed ordinance was then presented by the City Attorney.

Some of the Councilmen stated they could not support the ordinance in the shape in which it was presented and after debate, the whole matter was referred to the City Attorney with general instructions to present an ordinance regulating the operation of oil wells.

The application of the Los Angeles Consolidated Electric Railway for a franchise for two short routes, one of them being for Maple avenue, between Seventh and Fifth streets, and the other for Tenth street, between Flower and Pearl streets, has been laid over till today.

The protest against the proposed widening of Broadway, between Ninth and Tenth streets, was taken up by the Council last Monday and a considerable hearing was given after which further action was deferred till today.

Key West and Hoover streets, is to come up again at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

New specifications for street sprinkling, as prepared by the Board of Public Works, were presented at the last meeting of the Council. There was some objection raised against them in the form presented on the ground they did not state explicitly what streets other than the graded streets were to be sprinkled. It was argued there are some ungraded streets which the city can well afford to have sprinkled, but such streets should be named in the specifications. The matter was finally laid over till today.

Proposals for furnishing the city with 200 tons of hay were to be received last Monday but, there being only one bid, and that being at a high figure, the clerk was ordered to readvertise for proposals, which he did. The advertisement calls for the bids to be received this morning. Bids for the grading, graveling, guttering and redwood curbing of Burlington avenue, between Maryland street and Ocean View avenue, have also been advertised to be received this morning.

The Season-Ending Sale.

Is the supreme mercantile event for the coming week. The only genuine "dyed in the wool" sale in town. All so-called "bankrupt," "clearing" and "mark-down" sales are mere side shows in comparison; at best are only weak imitations. Read all the advertisements of the "great sacrifices" being made for the dear public's sake, then anchor your eyes on these prices. Is it any wonder we are the supreme establishment of the city? This supremacy is not accidental. It's caused by the greatest values and lowest prices. That's it.
